Re: Microsoft antitrust violations

Dear Sir,

I am writing in regard to the settlement agreement you have reached with Microsoft. I do not feel it is fair to me as a customer since they have damaged their competitors and made it both more expensive and harder to buy software from other sources as well as hurting the development of competing products that would most likely be better.

I would suggest that there be a penalty for their previous actions as well as some form of monitoring their future actions.

I understand that Red Hat Linux offered to give schools free software if Microsoft would give hardware of the value suggested instead of their own software. Giving their own software would be of no cost to them and would help perpetuate their monopoly by putting more of their own product out in the field.

Thanks for taking the time to read this. If you have any questions, please call me at the number listed below.

Sincerely,

Michael Adam
